$2 Billion for Missiles, Atom Planes Okayed

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The House Armed Services committee yesterday tentatively approved a $2 billion military construction bill authorizing new facilities to speed work on ballistic missiles and an atom-powered plane.

Final action on the bill is scheduled for Tuesday. The measure merely authorizes the new construction. Congress must provide the actual cash in separate legislation. The bill included:

$11.6 million for expansion of facilities at Arco, Idaho Falls, Idaho, for work on developing an atom-powered plane.

$36.6 million for facilities for testing and developing guided and ballistic missiles.

$7.3 million for an army aviation center at Ft. Rucker, Ala.

$300,000 to House the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and four of his staff assistants in Washington, and to build a communications center for them.

$90,000 for a house for the superintendent of the Air Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., and two $54,000 houses for two deans.

$3.2 million for a new navy jet training base at Meridian, Miss., and $10,030,000 a new jet operating field at Leosore, Calif.

The committee knocked out $23.3 million requested by the Navy to move the town of Fort Chicago, Calif., because of the danger of an explosion at the naval ammunition depot there. The committee voted instead to direct the Secretary of the Navy to hire an industrial firm to survey the possibility of other sites for the depot, scene of a major World War II disaster.

The bill also would: Make permanent installations of Camp Gordon and Camp Stewart, Ga.; Ft. Jackson, S. C.; Camp Chaffee, Ark.; Fort Polk, La.; and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Unsung Hero of Civilization Is Actually Not the Common Man But the Common Bore

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (UP) — Curbside reflections of a pavement Plato:

The unsung hero of civilization is not the common man but the common bore.

The common man has had so much praise in this generation that everybody wants to be one. How often do you hear someone remark: "Well, looking at it from the viewpoint of the common man I'd say—"

But nobody ever hymns the common bore, and on one will publicly admit he is one. This is unfair. We give even the devil his due. Why deny the common bore the credit he deserves?

The truth is that if the common man is the backbone of civilization the common bore is the social glue of civilization. He forces us to stick together to escape him.

I asked a famous hostess once what was the secret of a successful party.

"One secret," she replied, "is to be sure to invite at least one re-sounding bore."

"Why?" I inquired, surprised.

"Well," she said, "a bore fills that critical gap between the arrival of the guests and the time the second martini takes hold. He may not have a single thing worth saying—but he always has something to say."

"No matter how strange the other guests may have felt at first, by the end of the second martini they know at least they aren't as boring as the one who has done all the talking up until then. He has knit them together—as a common annoyance always does."

"They have a fine time for the rest of the party enjoying each other."

12 Members of Family Perish in House Fire

OXFORD, Pa. (UP) — Twelve members of one family died last night in a fire that destroyed their two-room tar-papered home in this community. An investigator said today "it looks like it could be foul play but we're not certain."

Deputy Coroner Ernest Schneider of Chester County, said a thorough investigation would be made in cooperation with State Police and fire officials.

The victims of the blaze were identified tentatively as the wife, children and grandchildren of John Twyman, a 30-year-old truck driver and a long-time resident of the "bottom" section of Oxford.

Twyman, police said, appeared at the scene of the blaze as the last of the bodies of the Negro family were being recovered from the 20x30-foot home. Patrolman Claude Swift said Twyman was shocked into mumbling incoherency but told him he had just returned from Baltimore.

Firemen were looking for Twyman's body when he appeared. Fire Marshal Robert Brown said the victims apparently asleep when the blaze started "didn't stand a chance."

Brown identified them tentatively as:

Mrs. Catherine Twyman, 35, whom he said was pregnant; and these Twyman children—Eleanor 20, Claudette 16, John Twyman Jr. 14, Josephine 12, Stephen 9, Dorris 7, Lewis 5, Janet 3, Joseph 2 months; and Eleanor's children—Andrew 2, and Harriet 13 months.

He said the home was heated by both a coal and wood stove and by a kerosene heater. "We can only assume that one of the two heaters either exploded or became overheated and set fire to the home," he said.

Herschel Twyman, John's brother and neighbor, told investigators he saw the adjoining structure blaze. He said he tried to open each of its four windows and the door but was driven back by intense heat.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (UP) —

Four Newton, Iowa, high school students, who concocted a story of being kidnaped, were given jail sentences today by a judge who told them they "appear to be very spoiled little girls."

Quiet and appearing to be in deep thought, the four pleaded guilty before Judge Walter McVey Jr., to charges of disturbing the peace and were sentenced to 30 days in the county jail here. One wiped her eyes.

Before sentence was pronounced, County Atty. Tom Crossan told the court that if the question of a parole arises he would recommend that it be taken under advisement "for a few days."

"Several thousand dollars was spent because of the foolishness of these girls and more than $200 in telephone bills alone were made on calls to Newton and other places," he said.

After passing sentence, Judge McVey said:

"In view of the seriousness of the offenses, I am not going to consider a parole at this time."

The girls then were returned to jail in custody of a matron.

The girls were not represented by counsel. Each entered her plea separately. Three of their parents were in the courtroom — Mrs. George Denman, Mrs. Edward Jensen and Homer L. Davis.

Mrs. Damman cried during the proceedings.

Arkansas Senators on Losing Side

WASHINGTON (UP) — Arkansas Sens. Fulbright and McClellan were on the losing side yesterday when the Senate voted to continue the Republican administration's policy of flexible price supports on basic farm crops.

Both McClellan and Fulbright voted against an amendment to the omnibus farm bill to continue the administration policy. The amendment was approved 54-4.

The two Arkansas senators favor rigid price supports such as basic crops as cotton and rice at 90 percent of parity. Under the flexible program, supports range between 75 and 90 percent of parity. Parity is the standard set by the U. S. Agriculture Department as a fair return on a farmer's investment.

To Show Big Diamond to Doubters

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A diamond found by a Texas woman near Murfreesboro, Ark., has been flown to Dallas for display there.

It originally had been announced that the gem would be displayed here today and tomorrow, but the plan was changed.

The diamond, officially designated the "Star of Arkansas" by Gov. Orval Faubus, eventually will go to New York for cutting and setting.

Mrs. Arthur L. Parker of Dallas found the stone, valued at $15,000 in its uncut form, Sunday at the Crater of Diamonds, part of a tract where diamonds once were mined commercially.

Yesterday, state Geologist Norman F. Williams said the stone was the "real McCoy."

"It's the biggest one I have ever seen outside of a case," said Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Miller, who operate the Crater of Diamonds, brought the stone to Little Rock yesterday. Mrs. Miller carried it in a coin purse.

Mrs. Parker has said she will not sell the diamond.

British Deport Leader of Cypriot Group

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP) — British Governor Sir John Harding today ordered the deportation of Archbishop Makarios, leader of the Cypriot Union-with-Greece movement.

He has already left with three other leaders of the Enosis — or Greek Union — movement. All four deportations were ordered under emergency regulations instituted after this British colony was torn by violence — bombings and shootings.

An official announcement said the four departed "under escort for a destination which will be announced later."

Makarios, archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church, had "disappeared" earlier while waiting for an airplane to take him to Athens.

The archbishop is the recognized leader of the Enosis movement, which wants this British Mediterranean island colony united with Greece. American-educated, he leads 400,000 Greek-speaking residents in their demands. The other 100,000 residents of the island, Turkish-descended, are opposed to Enosis.

Secret negotiations to restore peace to the violence-torn island collapsed last Monday and Makarios defied British threats of armed might.

Play Hookey to Swim Despite the Snow

MASSILLON, Ohio (UP) — It may be snowy and windy in many parts of Ohio today but Police Chief Russ Downey of nearby Navarre reported the first case of hookey prompted by a desire to go swimming.

Downey said two boys, 11 and 14, were found nude on a creek bank in Beblehem Township park. The boys said they had been swimming several times and had become "adjusted" to the cold water.

Blizzards in Northeast, Leave 7 Dead

By The Associated Press

The Northeast, already hit by floodwaters, snow and sleet, prepared today to cope with blizzards, freezing rain and bitter cold.

The Allegheny River and its tributaries ran rampant over communities in southwestern New York and northwestern Pennsylvania.

At least seven deaths were reported, two in New York state and five in Canada.

High winds and swirling snow slashed Ontario, while the adjacent New England area was walloped with a 12-inch rainfall in some sections plus heavy snow blinks and sleet in others.

The waters of the Allegheny slowly retreated from low-lying portions of Warren, Pa., as some 2,000 refugees hopefully watched for a chance to return to their homes. No casualties were reported.

Towns along the Allegheny to Pittsburgh were expecting flood conditions today, but the Weather Bureau said serious damage was not expected.

State Braces for Some More Cold Weather

BY UNITED PRESS

Arkansas braced itself today for another cold wave, but temperatures were not expected to go as low as a last fling winter threw into the state earlier this week.

The forecast said it would be warmer this afternoon, but colder in the north portion tonight and throughout the state Saturday.

Lows tonight should be in the 30's and 40's, after highs this afternoon in the mid and high 60's.

The extended forecast, Friday for temperatures to average three through next Wednesday, called to six degrees below the normal maximum of 62 degrees and the normal minimum of 41 degrees.

It will be colder Sunday, warmer Tuesday, and colder again next Wednesday. Precipitation for the period will be light to moderate with showers about Wednesday.

other, and ducking him." While this may seem like a joke, the saving feature is that he is a real, true-born bore, he goes home from the party more satisfied than anybody. He is flattered to have held so many ears for so long.

Naturally, there are different types of bores, and their virtues vary. Here are the two "general classes":

The palloping or strident bore. He is usually an agile, loud-mouthed spokesman for an obscure cause. "Why," he demands, "do firemen only collect Christmas toys for poor children in their own neighborhood? Why don't they ship them to the Mau Mau kids in Africa as a goodwill gesture?" He not only wants your attention, he expects you to contribute funds. Very little can be said of this kind of bore. He is a public nuisance. The sedentary, or slow-moving bore—this is merely a simple-hearted fellow on a verbal roller coaster whose mind is in his vocal cords, and whose nature endlessly craves an audience. He is actually the salt of the earth. But you know how it is with salt. Enough's enough.

What is the very worst bore of all? Historians of the bore say there is really very little difference between male and female bores of the common, or sedentary variety. But they likewise agree that nothing is more impossible than a palloping lady bore under full head of steam and with her throttle open.

No sensible hostess will invite a strident, petticoat bore to two shindigs in a row. She'll shrill any party to death.

But, generally speaking, haven't some of the most unforgettable characters you've ever known been bores? They live on in memory long after those of greater charm and sense fade away.

The ordinary bore is a social catalyst who restores our sense of humor and helps keep our woe problems in perspective.

We have to like him a bit secretly, because who, in his own heart, can dodge the knowledge that sometimes he is a bit of a bore himself?

Hail to the common bore, key-stone of modern society!

Monday: America's ten most common types of bores.

Guns Fire in Battle for Electric Rates

BY GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opening salvos were fired here this week in a fight which will have a big bearing on electric power rates—particularly rural rates—in Arkansas and other southwestern states.

At issue is a proposal by the Interior Department to raise wholesale power rates charged by the Southwestern Power Administration by 40 per cent, about 2.2 mills a kilowatt-hour.

The proposal is being opposed by Rural Electric Cooperatives in half a dozen states and by congressmen from the area.

At present the proposal is being held in abeyance by the Interior Department in order to give a congressional committee headed by Sen. Kerr (D-Okla.) time to complete an inquiry into the picture.

Assistant Secretary of Interior Fred Aandahl told Kerr he would withhold filing of the new rates with the Power Commission until April 7. It's possible the effective date will be much later since Kerr with other senators, including Sens. McClellan and Fulbright, Arkansas Democrats, have introduced legislation to freeze present rates until July 1, 1957.

The whole controversy around which the present phase revolves is a complicated, complex matter that involves a fight over public power, construction of big water dams and the Eisenhower administration philosophy on power.

Aandahl and his aides based the proposed increase in a finding that present SPA rates are insufficient to pay back the government investment in the power facilities of the dams, plus interest, in a 50-year period.

The Cooperatives' reply is that Aandahl has allocated to the power facilities too big a share of the cost of the dams and that he should use a 100-year amortization period. If he followed this pattern, they say, present rates would be sufficient.

The dispute goes back to the time the first federal dams were built in the southwest, in the early 1940s.

At that time the dams were proposed as projects to control floods, provide navigation water, recreation and the like. Power was considered incidental.

So when the first two dams were built, costs were allocated under what is known as the incremental formula. That is, engineers figured how much it would cost to build a flood control dam. They figured the cost of adding power generation features. The latter figure represented the amount allocated to power.

But a new theory later developed, and the administration has altered it. It is known as the separable cost remaining benefit formula. Under this formula power is charged a share of building the entire structure as well as the cost of the power itself.

Naturally under this formula the cost allocated to power is less than under the incremental formula.

TORNADO SAFETY RULES

TO KNOW WHAT TO DO WHEN A WARNING IS RECEIVED, OR A TORNADO IS OBSERVED, MAY MEAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH!!

I There is no universal protection against tornadoes except caves or underground excavations. When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave, or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure. It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas, or debris; and preferably equipped with pick and shovel.

II If you are in open country :

1. Move at right angles to the tornado's path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour.
2. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression such as a ditch or ravine.

III If in a city or town :

1. Seek inside shelter, preferably in a strongly reinforced building. STAY AWAY FROM WINDOWS!
2. In homes: The southwest corner of the basement usually offers greatest safety, particularly in frame houses. People in houses without basements should find other shelter, preferably in a storm cellar, although a depression, such as a ditch or ravine, can offer some protection. If time permits, electricity and fuel lines should be shut off. Doors and windows on the north and east sides of the house may be opened to help reduce damage to the building.
3. Standing against the inside wall on a lower floor of an office building offers some protection.

IV If in schools :

1. In city areas: If school building is of strongly reinforced construction, stay inside, away from windows, remain near an inside wall on the lower floors when possible. AVOID AUDITORIUMS AND GYMNASIUMS with large, poorly-supported roofs!
2. In rural schools that do not have strongly reinforced construction, remove children and teachers to a ravine or ditch if storm shelter is not available.

V If in factories and industrial plants :

On receiving a tornado warning, a lookout should be posted to keep safety officials advised of the tornado's approach. Advance preparation should be made for shutting off electrical circuits and fuel lines if the tornado approaches the plant. Workers should be moved to sections of the plant offering the greatest protection.

VI Keep calm! It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado. Even though a warning is issued, chances of a tornado striking one's home or location are very slight. Tornadoes cover such a small zone, as a rule, that relatively only a few places in a warned area are directly affected. You should know about tornadoes though, "just in case".

VII Keep tuned to your radio or television station for latest tornado advisory information. Do not call the Weather Bureau, except to report a tornado, as your individual request may tie up telephone lines urgently needed to receive special reports or to relay advisories to radio and television stations for dissemination to thousands in the critical area.

TORNADO INFORMATION

WHERE TORNADOES CAN OCCUR:

Any place in the United States at any time of the year. They happen most frequently in the midwestern, southern and central states from March through September.

HOW OFTEN DO THEY OCCUR:

The records show that the average number of days with tornadoes varies from about 12 per year in parts of the Mid-West to less than one per year in the Northeastern and far Western states.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A TORNADO:

Usually observed as a funnel-shaped cloud, spinning rapidly, and extending toward the earth from the base of a thundercloud. When close by, it sounds like the roar of hundreds of airplanes.

TORNADO "WEATHER":

Hot, sticky days with southerly winds and a threatening, ominous sky. However, many such days occur without tornadoes.

CLOUDS:

Familiar thunderstorm clouds are present. An hour or two before a tornado, topsy-turvy clouds appear sometimes bulging down instead of up. The clouds often have a greenish-black color.

PRECIPITATION:

Rain, frequently hail, preceding the tornado, with a heavy downpour after it has passed.

TIME OF DAY:

Mostly between 3 and 7 P.M., but they have occurred at all hours.

DIRECTION OF TRAVEL:

In most cases they move from a westerly direction, usually from the southwest.

LENGTH OF PATH:

Usually 10 to 40 miles (the average length is 16 miles), but they may move forward for 300 miles.

WIDTH OF PATH:

The average width is about 400 yards, but they have cut swaths over a mile in width.

SPEED OF TRAVEL:

25 to 40 miles per hour average, but they have varied from 5 to 139 miles per hour.

WIND SPEED:

Estimated as high as 500 miles per hour within the tornado.

CAUSES OF DESTRUCTION:

- (1) Violent winds which uproot trees, destroy buildings, and which create a serious hazard from objects blown through the air.
- (2) Differences in air pressure which can lift automobiles and can cause buildings to collapse.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE — Weather Bureau formula. When the first dams were built the portion charged to power was about 50 per cent of the total cost. By contrast, the administration has allocated 70 per cent of the cost of building Table Rock dam, now under construction, to power.

The cooperatives scent a possible effort by the administration to aid private utilities by filing the new rate schedule.

They point out that since the SPA is the "yardstick" for power rates in the area when SPA rates are increased, private companies will follow suit. In fact, some witnesses charged the move was planned in order to let private companies boost rates.

The cooperatives said that private rates were high until the SPA entered the picture. Then, they said, the utilities met the SPA rate.

Also in the picture is a contention that if the administration formula is followed it will be much more difficult to get new dams projects authorized and built in the future. The reasoning behind this is that projects, to be authorized, must show more annual benefits than annual costs. So, if the share allocated to power is raised then the annual cost of amortizing the project is raised and it is more difficult to show a favorable benefit-cost ratio.

Not all of the rate increases can be attributed to the use of a new formula in allocating costs. Part of it is due to increase in construction costs since projects were authorized.

Douglas Wright, SPA administrator, testified that SPA rates likely would have to be raised from 1/4 mill to one mill a kilowatt to meet the increase in costs, assuming a 50-year amortization period is used.

Regarding the change in the cost allocation formula, the cooperatives complain that the rules were changed in the middle of the game by the Eisenhower Administration. They asked that Congress be informed and declare that costs are to be allocated under the old incremental formula.

Wright urged that Congress provide some guides in the matter.

His point was that if one set of administrators could change the formula today, then another set could change them another way tomorrow and under those conditions the SPA would have a difficult time selling its power since its customers want a firm understanding on rates.

Wright also urged that if costs are to be allocated at this stage of the game, then Congress or someone should re-examine the entire flood control program. He pointed out that many benefits, unauthorized, have come about. These benefits, he said, should be refigured along with any refiguring of costs.

This is all right down the alley of a proposal by Rep. Tumble (D-Ark) that Congress set the policy. He likewise contends that the Congress originally fixed the policy but that it has been changed by the Eisenhower administration.

For 1952 (the latest complete figures) 3,530,000 U. S. births or 91.7 per cent of all births took place in hospitals.

chair to vote with the administration. Kansas' Republican senators, Carlson and Schoepel, voted for the amendment. Democrats Hennings and Symington of Missouri and Fulbright and McClellan of Arkansas were opposed.

Eisenhower was described as the White House as "delighted" by the vote, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson said he wanted to "commend the Senate highly."

Arriving at the White House this morning for a brief conference with Eisenhower in advance of a cabinet meeting, Benson called the Senate action "constructive."

Asked about lobbying charges made against him by some Congress members, Benson replied that he only gets to the Capitol when invited.

"I don't think that is lobbying," he added.

In a letter to Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), Benson said it "would appear desirable" to fix higher support prices for cotton this year. Aiken made the letter public yesterday shortly before the vote on price supports.

Asked today whether in his opinion the letter won the votes of some cotton states senators for the administration position, Benson replied: "I doubt if it made much difference one way or the other."

Benson predicted that if a farm bill reaches Eisenhower's desk it will provide for continuing the present system of flexible price supports.

He said he has received reports—which he doubts—that opponents of the flexible support program may try to keep a bill from reaching the president this year, "for political purposes."

In Chicago, resident Charles B. Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation said the action if sustained would increase farmers' markets and help them "earn higher net incomes."

But Sen. Humphrey (D-Min.) said it "will mean a billion-dollar reduction in farm income. If the 90 percent supports on wheat go cut too." He conceded that was likely.

The Democrats sought to restore price supports on basic crops at 90 per cent of parity, and to scrap Eisenhower's plan, adopted in 1954, for a flexible system ranging from 75 to 90 per cent. Parity is a standard fixed by law as fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

The soil bank plan, over which there is no major controversy,

Prospects Look Good For This Marriage

Dear Miss Dix: Neil and I grew up together and always planned to be married some day. We loved each other from childhood. He went into service, plans were made for our wedding, when Neil asked for the ring back. I couldn't understand and was terribly hurt, but I returned it without question.

He eloped with a girl who had been a friend of ours. Later, she told me she had tricked him into marriage by telling him she was carrying his child. However, their son wasn't born until ten months after their marriage. She also said that Neil had always loved me. From then on, I pitied them both. They moved to another city and I lost track of them.

I was working at the time at a good job, which I still hold. Then, some ten years ago, I met Frank, fell in love with him, and we were married. We were happy for a few months, then the meanness of Frank's basic nature showed itself. He cut me off from my family and friends and actually resented the birth of our child because it kept me from work for a few months. The rift between was widened and three years ago Frank asked for, and obtained, a divorce.

One day while shopping, I met Neil. At once I knew I still loved him. His wife had left him for another man, they were divorced and he had custody of their child. That was a year ago. We have seen each other constantly, our love is as strong as ever so we again planned a wedding. Our respective ministers knew the whole story and approved of us.

Then, out of a clear blue sky, our ex-mates appeared on the scene asking reconciliations. It was almost as though it had been prearranged.

Now we don't know where our duty lies. Neither my husband nor Neil's wife has shown any interest in the children since the divorces. We feel we could build a much better life for them as well as each other by going through with our plans. We don't want to hurt anyone and want to do what's best for the children.

GERTRUDE Answer: If you have discussed the situation with your ministers and they approve, I can't see where the difficulty lies. Your respective children take enthusiastically to the idea of uniting the two families, your former mates betrayed their marital trust and came asking forgiveness only when

Segregation Ban Extended to All Schools

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court — knocking down another racial barrier to education — has just rounded out its historic ban on segregation in public schools. Its ban now clearly extends from kindergarten through college.

It ruled May 17, 1954, against segregation in public schools. The court didn't say in so many words that it was ruling against segregation all along the line up to and including colleges and universities supported by tax money.

Yesterday it ruled that's exactly what it meant. It took this action at a moment when:

1. The Deep South is twisting and turning in search of devices for preserving segregation in the lower public schools.

2. Alabama is still rocking from the violent reaction of a mob against the efforts of Autherine Lucy, a Negro, to get into the University of Alabama.

The court didn't mention the University of Alabama yesterday. It was ruling on the case of three Negroes who want an education at the University of North Carolina. But the ruling applies to all Southern colleges and universities dependent on public financing.

This doesn't mean that those Southern states insist upon preserving segregation in schools will now throw open the doors of their tax-supported colleges and universities to Negroes.

"They probably won't do it any more, quickly than they've done it with their lower public schools. Different schools and different states will probably follow — this course in one form or another."

A Negro, denied admittance, will appeal to a lower federal court judge who, in keeping with yesterday's action of the high court, can only order the college or university to admit the Negro.

Then the school will try to go over the lower court judge's head with an appeal to the Supreme

Long Wants to Bar Outsiders

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. designate Earl K. Long, miffed at the victory of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Find in the rich New Orleans Handicap, wants to keep invading thoroughbreds from competing in the top Fair Grounds purses.

Long, who takes office May 17, saw Find, imported from Florida for the Saturday race only, score 600 first place money.

Long suggests that horses should be quarantined at the Fair Grounds for 30 days and run in at least one race before entering the track's major stakes events.

Long may see the same thing again Saturday. Angelo Cillo's Mark's Richey spent most of the winter at Florida tracks and arrived this week to take a crack at the $40,000-added Louisiana Derby.

"If my Racing Commission has good enough reason to decline my suggestions," Long said, "then I won't carry it any further."

Horses from Florida tracks have dominated the New Orleans Handicap in the past several years. Hasty House Farms' Sea O Erin took the big pot last year.

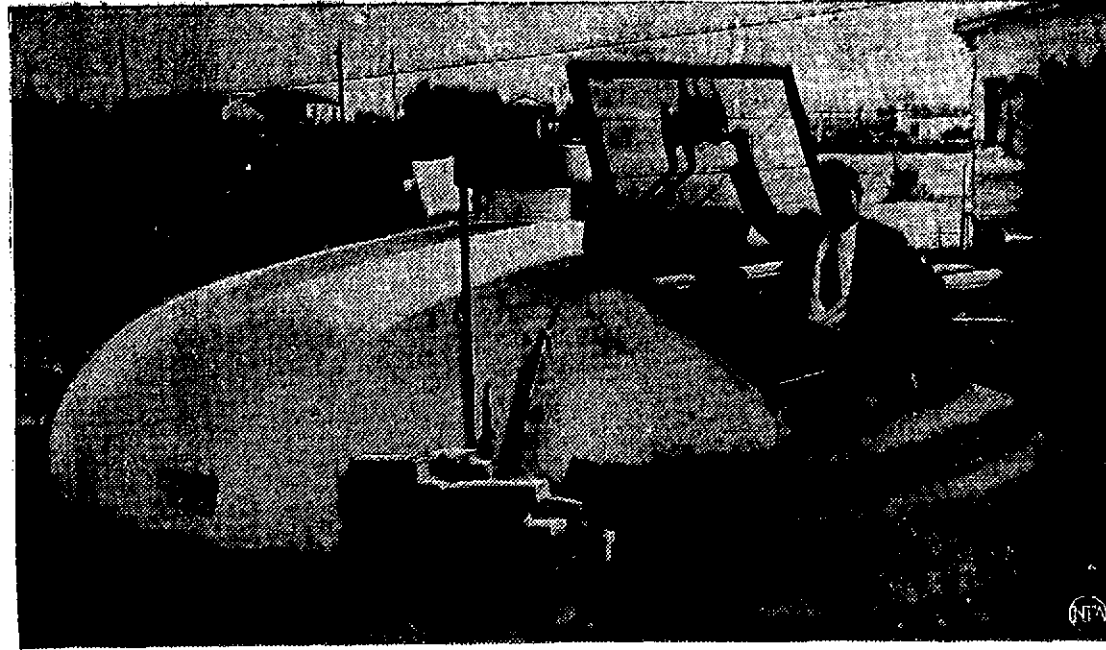

Court. The decision there is a foregone conclusion. And the action will no doubt be fast.

The court in the future won't have to take time for reaching a decision on the problem of segregation in public schools. It's been through all that.

Yesterday's ruling was the result of this: A special three-judge federal court in Greensboro, N. C., ordered three Negroes admitted to the University of North Carolina. They were acting under the May 17, 1954, ruling.

The university appealed to the Supreme Court. That court simply said the lower court was right — the Negroes had to be admitted. Actually, the university already had admitted them, pending the outcome of its court fight.

Eight Southern states — Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee and Louisiana — have accepted Negroes, ranging from a handful to hundreds, in both graduate and undergraduate schools. The schools did this either voluntarily or under court order.

BURIED IGLOO, TEXAS STYLE—Leroy Bowley, 36, has found plenty of peacetime uses for this bomb shelter submerged in his back yard in Fort Worth, Tex. He says it comes in handy as a play room, den and guest room. Bowley, who works the night shift at an aircraft plant, also finds the content shell the perfect place to sleep during the day, away from the noise. The shelter, 14 feet in diameter and eight feet high, is one of three built by a Fort Worth contractor. Bowley paid $950 for his. The contractor says the luxury model sells for $3500.

Saturday Night TV Has Treat for Viewers

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—While the piano is essential to composer Arthur Schwartz, he found the telephone a very handy instrument in writing the music for "High Tor," a play with music starring Bing Crosby and Julie Andrews. It comes to the TV home audience next Saturday night on Ford Star Jubilee.

To go back a bit, High Tor is a mountain overlooking the beautiful Hudson River Valley. Playwright Maxwell Anderson took it as the location and title for his successful Broadway play of several seasons ago. It's the story of a contemporary guy (Crosby) who owns High Tor and to the distress of his fiancée (Nancy Olson) falls in love with the ghost of a Dutch girl (Miss Andrews) dead 300 years.

The composer of such hits as "Dancing in the Dark" and "Something to Remember You By," Schwartz also leads an extraordinary double life as a producer. In producing the filmed version of "High Tor" for television, Schwartz says, "The composer in me sometimes struggled with the producer in me."

But, speaking only of the composer in Schwartz, there was no difficulty because of the fact that he was in Hollywood and Anderson was in Stamford, Conn. This thanks to the telephone. Schwartz explained that this was the way they worked.

Anderson sent Schwartz the lyrics for a song entitled "Living One Day at a Time." Schwartz liked the title but didn't care for the lyrics. He composed part of a melody and then phoned Anderson across the country and hummed it to him. Anderson recorded the incomplete melody and within 24 hours phoned Schwartz new lyrics which the composer liked. He completed the melody and the song became a reality.

On another occasion, Schwartz, the producer, decided that Schwartz, the composer, must supply a new song within 48 hours for a special spot in the show. He telephoned Anderson in the evening and Anderson said, "How about the title 'aid Is the Life of a Sailor's Wife'?" Could Anderson hurry up some lyrics for composer Schwartz at the behest of producer Schwartz?

Sure, said Anderson. He telephoned the lyrics to Schwartz the next morning. Then Schwartz sat down at the piano and composed the music in an hour. When he proudly reported this feat to a CBS executive, the executive asked rather plaintively: "Why are we paying you so much for such short hours?"

Crosby himself is delighted with the tunes and the production in general. Schwartz reported, quoting him as saying: "High Tor" is something I'll be proud to have been a part of for the rest of my life."

Fayetteville announces the arrival of a son on March 3. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John McWilliams of Prescott and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cooper of Texarkana.

Friends of W. D. Durham will regret that he is ill with pneumonia.

Loss and Gain

The older man is saying, "I have worked hard to make this farm pay. But I wonder if that is enough. What is ahead... how much loss and how much gain? He has asked this minister to explain it all. What does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own soul? Things do not satisfy. Man is a spiritual creature. He cannot be content with food and shelter. He was made for fellowship with God and his soul will always be hungry until he knows that he is a son of God and learns to walk with the Eternal Spirit. He must go forward with Christ. He must go to church and live in daily consciousness of the favor and blessing of his God. As he sharpens his tools to lose or gain, so must he sharpen his mind and his heart for God. Any business will pay when God is the senior partner.

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions making religious character. In the church the ministerial are the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" GO! and a daily BIBLE READER.

High Court to Hear Santee's Case

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wes Santee case gets another run in the courts today. The State Supreme Court will rule on the validity of the Amateur Athletic Union's lifetime suspension of America's fastest miller. Santee's lawyer Charles P. Grimes will ask the court to strengthen the temporary injunction he obtained last week against the ban. If Grimes is successful Santee likely will run in the mile in Milwaukee tomorrow night.

Younger Pros Perk Up at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—The spotlight was on the younger pros, and especially on Jerry Kesselring, in the second round of the $12,500 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament today.

Kesselring, a wiry 27-year-old from Toronto, Canada, parlayed a hot putter into a two-stroke lead over the "old pros" in yesterday's opening round. His 4-under-par 68 was one of 20 sub-par par rounds turned in by the 153-man field over the 6,627-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Most of the low 20 scores were turned in by the more youthful pros.

The veteran Buck White, Memphis, Tenn., came home with a 70, together with George Bigham, Kansas City, Mo.; Dow Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, Ohio; Don January, Abilene, Tex.; and Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla.

Three were bracketed at 71—Dick Mayer, St. Petersburg, Fla.; John Serrafin, Fox Hill, Pa.; and Joe Beck, Abilene.

Ed Furgol, 1954 U. S. Open Champion, was among 11 entrants who had par 72s.

25-Team Field for NCAA Play Is Completed

By The Associated Press

The 25-team field for the NCAA basketball championship tournament is complete.

Morehead (Ky.) State, highest scoring major college club in history, last night won the Ohio Valley Conference crown and its first NCAA berth.

The Eagles did it the hard way. Dan Swartz and Herman Tolle each sank a pair of free throws in the last 21 seconds to defeat Western Kentucky 84-80 in the finale of a three-team playoff. Western, oddly, had eliminated Tennessee Tech by the same score the night before, swishing two field goals in the last 11 seconds.

Morehead's 84 points slimmed its average a bit, to 96 points a game. That still broke the record 95.3 mark set by Furman a year ago.

The Eagles, who overhauled Western midway in the second half and then held on to the lead, won into Marshall, the No. 2 high-scoring major college team this season, in the first-round NCAA eliminations at Fort Wayne, Ind., Monday night.

There was very little other activity last night. Manhattan, headed for a Tuesday meeting with Connecticut, in the NCAA regional eliminations at Madison Square Garden, defeated Fordham 78-71.

Iowa State assured itself a share of second place in the Big Seven conference by defeating Nebraska 94-74.

Toski in Role of Favorite at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Little Bob Toski was in the favorite's role as play began today on the $12,500 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

Toski, from Holyoke, Mass., won the gallery acclaim with a five-under-par 67 practice round yesterday. He had toured the well-traveled Pensacola Country Club course in 68 the preceding day.

Others rated as top contenders were Doug Ford, 1955 PGA champion; Arnold Palmer, 1954 National Amateur titleholder; and Ed Furgol, 1954 U. S. Open champion.

The field of 153, including 122 touring pros and 31 amateurs, will be trimmed to 60 pros and 10 amateurs and ties after 18-hole rounds today and tomorrow. The survivors will vie in similar 18-hole rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Harold Ridgley, now stationed at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., paced 21 amateurs in qualifying for the tournament yesterday. Ten other amateurs, headed by Rod Fumseth of Spokane, Wash., were exempt from qualifying, as were all pros.

Lightburn Goes After No. 7

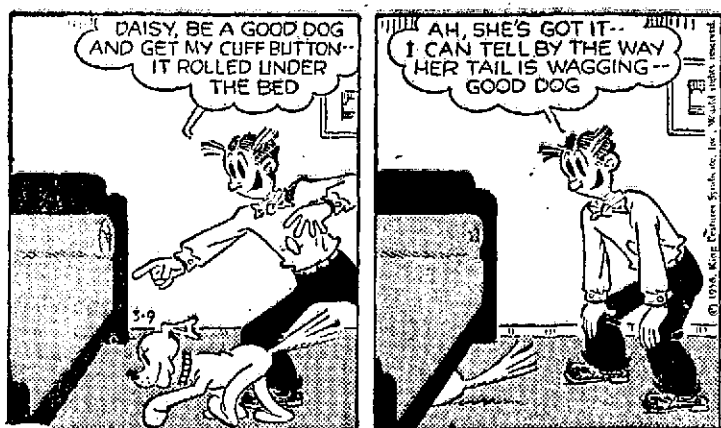

NEW YORK (AP)—Ludwig (Luddy) Lightburn, one of the bright hopes of the stagnant lightweight division, goes after his seven straight victory tonight.

The 21-year-old contender from British Honduras is a 2-1 choice to get it at Algerian Hoacine Khalifi's expense in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

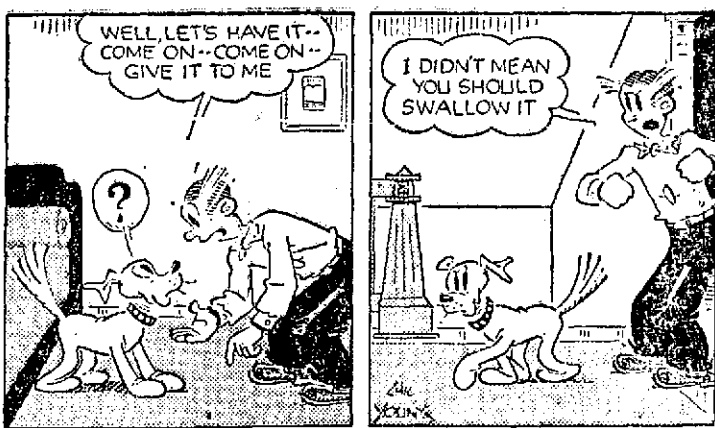

Khalifi represents one of the notches of Luddy's belt. The rangy youngster with the picture-punching style and fast hands trounced the 28-year-old Algerian five months ago.

One of Lightburn's recent victims was Ralph Dupas, second-ranking contender from New Orleans. Khalifi's last outing resulted in a split decision loss to Dupas in New Orleans Feb. 20.

Bare Facts About Film Made in France

By BEN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Norman Krassa, producer, director, and writer, is back in town with a report on how he filmed French movie stars barefoot from the waist down.

This sort of thing is common in France where Krassa made what he claims is the first American movie with an all-French crew. Americans are not accustomed to nudity so his project created a little stir here.

Krassa started out his Hollywood career as a hustling press agent at Warner Brothers, but he resisted the suggestion that the whole thing was for publicity.

"It's common to see bare bottoms in Paris night clubs," he explained. "In fact, you get so tired of it that you find yourself just waiting until the comedian comes on."

"He needed the half-draped chorines for authenticity's sake," he argued. A sequence showed Olivia de Havilland, who plays "The Ambassador's Daughter," giving a U.S. Army sergeant John Forsythe a tour of the Parisian alleys.

"The sergeant has to blush," Krassa remarked. "But it wasn't the blush I needed; I could do that with a red light."

"So the audience would understand what he was blushing at, it's a needed, the unblushed French girls. But he doesn't intend to shock American sensibilities."

"I shot it two ways," he remarked. "In American, you will see the chorus girls waving fans. Then, in the mirror behind the sergeant, you will see the fans raised into the air."

"But the French will wonder if something is missing from the picture if we don't show the girls. The French are that way; if a scene logically calls for nudity, they show it."

"So he made the shot of the back-to-natural girls. He said it was a routine day's shooting for all, his only concern being that the girls would get chilled."

Krassa himself has cold feet about keeping the shot in the French version. "I don't want it to seem cheap," he remarked.

The French were extremely cooperative about making the picture. "I think it will do for Paris what 'Summertime' did for Venice and 'Roman Holiday' for Rome."

Looking for a Quiet Place—Try New York

NEW YORK (AP)—If you're looking for a nice quiet place to go, this may be it—some time.

Officials are out to hush all unnecessary noise.

But they're well aware that's not going to be an easy job in a city that just naturally doesn't hanker to be shushed.

Roaring subways, clattering garbage cans, the rattle of rat-a-tat-tat, thundering trucks and squealing brakes as much a part of the big town as the Empire State Building.

Still, you never know. The new anti-noise campaign started off with a bang...er, pardon, a quiet but dramatic success.

In just one week, authorities claimed today, the damper has all but completely been put on the No. 1 noise maker of all time: the horn honker.

His unnecessary blaring has been cut 75 per cent or more. Furthermore, even the necessary honking during the past few days has been muted.

John J. Hornblower, No. 1 target in the noise battle, was given until March 15 to reform. After that, he'll be given a summons.

Deputy Commerce Commissioner Martin Dodge said the anti-noise program was launched because New York had become about the noisiest city in creation.

"It's not impossible," he said, "but it will take time." He figures it's more a matter of education, showing people how much nicer, healthier and safer things can be with less racket.

May, Banks Still Slopping Homers

By BEN CLAN

OF THE Associated Press

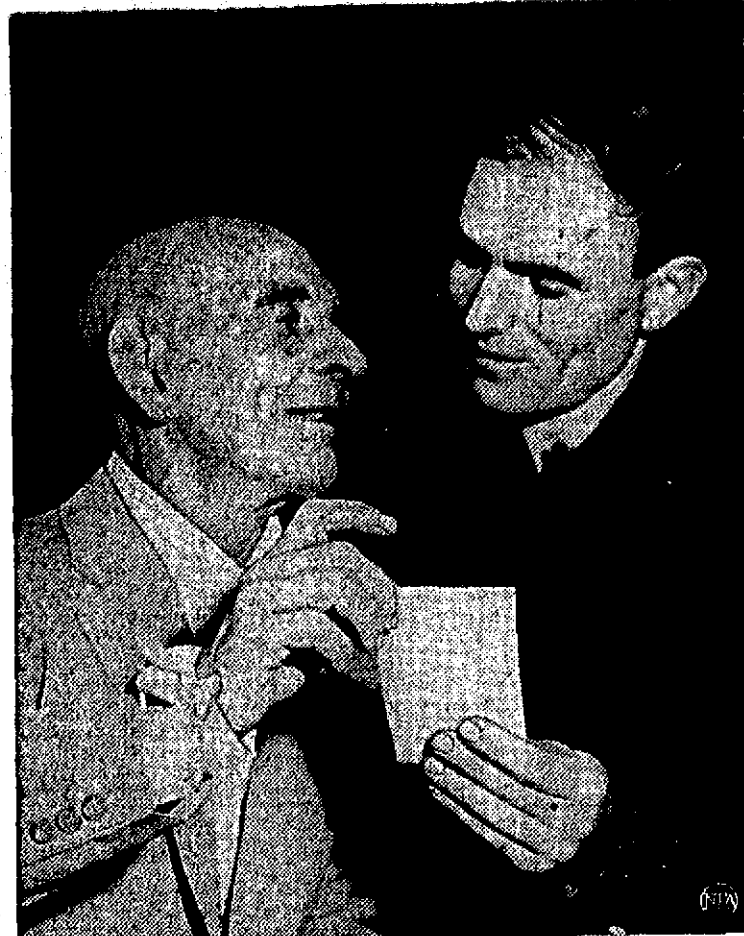

Willie Mays of the New York Giants, Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati's Wally Pate accounted for 135 National League home runs last season and they're picking up right where they left off.

Mays, who led the league with 54 circuit blows in 1955, walloped a 400-foot homer in the first inning of an intrasquad game yesterday. It was his second home run in three games.

Banks, a 44-homer man in '55, connected with the bases loaded in a game in Mesa, Ari. Pate, who had 40 a year ago, belted a Redlegs' game in Tampa, Fla.

These three veteran trio was joined a time, rookies stole the show in other camp hits.

The Angry Hills

THE STORY: Mike Morrison, an American caught by the German invasion of Greece in 1941, has been asked to deliver an "innocent document" to London. But the Germans cut off his escape and not until too late does he realize that this paper is information for British intelligence. Two men seek him, one with horn-rimmed glasses, the other a New Zealander named Mosley. Mike thinks both are German agents. He opens the envelope which he finds contains a list of names. He remembers this and tears up the paper.

Chapter IX

Mike Morrison ran down the hillside, desperately determined to get aboard a ship and get out of Greece. When he reached the beach all semblance of discipline had broken. The unarmed men were in a frenzy to escape. Mike stood on the fringe of a howling mob 200 yards deep and every man had but one thought.

Mike had to reach the water. He had to be there when the boats came. Behind him he could hear the sounds of battle coming closer and closer.

Suddenly it became still. A British colonel stepped out into the water in front of the men. His bearing was regal, but he could not hold back the tremor in his voice. "We are prisoners of war," he said softly.

The thread of hope had snapped! The glow of campfires studded the beach. Michael Morrison trembled as he sat by a campfire. He was frightened beyond any fear he had ever known. He visualized a black club smashing down on his head and men kicking at his ribs and throwing water on his unconscious body to revive him for further torture. He wanted to believe he had courage—but he was afraid.

He toyed with the idea of trying to bargain for his life in exchange for the names of the mysterious list. He tried to justify it in his mind, but he couldn't. He knew he would never know a minute's peace of mind for the rest of his life if he broke in cowardice before them.

From the edge of the woods a tall blond man wearing a New Zealand uniform looked at Mike quietly.

The sun began to rise on the Gulf of Messinia.

The tall blond man stepped from behind a clump of trees and walked up behind Mike's seated figure. Mike sensed his presence and turned to look up into the cold blue eyes of Jack Mosley. He was not startled—nor was he frightened. It was a calm acceptance.

"All right, Morrison, stand up—no outcry—move into the woods."

Mike arose and preceded Mosley into the woods until they were isolated from the beach. Mosley produced a pistol and leveled it on Mike as he leaned against a tree. His haggard face cracked into a smile.

"Touche," Mosley said with a mock salute of his pistol. "Your little drunk act was quite convincing. I must say. Throw us all off for a while."

Mike was silent. His eyes narrowed in hatred. He waited for Mosley to relax for only a second.

"You'll be interested to know I got through the lines last night after the surrender. I had a phone chat with our mutual friend, Konrad Heilser, in Athens. He was quite overwhelmed with joy that you hadn't departed from this pleasant little country."

"If you're going to kill me, get it over with," Mike said quietly.

"Kill you? Oh, dear, no. Herr Heilser has such a lovely reception planned for you in Athens. I believe you have a bit of information he'd like. I do hope our car for Athens won't be late..."

Mosley sighed. "Soon as the busness of hauling your friends off to a prison camp is cleared we'll be underway."

"What are they going to do with me?"

"Do Depends on you, old boy. You know, I have disagreed with Konrad about his messy method of extracting information, but I will say this for him—he does get excellent results. By the bye, Morrison, would you give me the name of that splendid tobacco I smoked with you. I must send to America for some..."

A sharp crack of a pistol report sounded.

An odd expression came over Mosley's face. His pistol spun around on his finger. His hand opened and the pistol dropped to the ground. Mosley wavered. He took a step toward Mike—another...

His knees buckled and he fell to the ground and rolled over at Mike's feet. Mosley kicked and twitched. Then he lay still. His mouth fell open, the expression of amazement still in his dead eyes.

A man stepped from behind a tree a few feet away. He was a little man, only five feet tall and he wore horn-rimmed glasses and there was a smoking pistol in his hand.

He picked up Mosley's pistol and shoved it into Mike's hand. "Hide this under your belt," he said.

The little man shook Mike, then took him by the arm. "Come on, man," he said, "we've got to get out of here." They circled about and approached the troops on the beach. The men were stacking their rifles for confiscation.

Mike slumped down on the sand and shook his head.

"We are in luck," the little man said. "No one heard the shot."

The little man slipped down beside him and talked in half-whispers. Mike clamped his mouth shut.

"My name is Soutar. Major Howe-Wilken, may his soul rest in peace, was my partner."

Chapter X

The man who called himself Soutar lit a cigarette. "Don't be a fool. I'd've killed you along with Jack Mosley if I thought for a moment you weren't the right sort. I heard what you said to Mosley."

It seemed futile to resist him. He knew his name, who he was. Anyhow, he was certainly done for one way or another if this Soutar was a German agent.

"All right," Mike said. "I'm Morrison and I'm an American citizen. I've had it—I want out of this mess. I was sucked into it and I want out."

"That," Soutar said with an impish smile, "poses a bit of a problem. You may as well face up—you're in this up to your neck."

"Why?" Mike demanded.

"Like it or not, you know, Morrison, sometimes we have little to say with the turns of our lives."

Mike pawed at the sand, feeling more confidence in Soutar now. The little man was right—Mike knew it.

"All right," Mike whispered. "I'm in."

As they sat and waited for the German round-up, little Soutar related his story in his thick Scottish burr.

When the German army invaded Greece and Yugoslavia, he and Major Howe-Wilken were sent to Athens to get the Stergiou list. From the moment they landed they knew that the enemy had got wind of their plans. This was later confirmed when Soutar discovered that Zeros, a government clerk, had suspected and sold the information to the Germans.

Soutar and Howe-Wilken avoided making contact with Sergou. They arranged, instead, to have the list passed to Morrison. Then they made their move as a cover to exclude Morrison from any suspicion. Howe-Wilken went to Stergiou's home and Soutar set out to find a plane from Athens. Soutar, knowing he was being followed, spent most of the day leading his shadows up and down Athens and finally shook them to make his rendezvous with Howe-Wilken.

Soutar arrived at Petraki, 17, only a few minutes after Mike had run out in a drunken stupor. Howe-Wilken lived long enough to relay the fact that Morrison still had the list and hoped he would go to the Tatol airdrome.

Soutar lost contact at the airdrome during the raid—traced Mike to the train—lost him and continued his search.

"Of course I was at disadvantage," Soutar said, "never having seen you or knowing exactly what you looked like. But then your good friend Mosley solved the problem for me."

"Exactly who is Mosley?"

"Well, he had a half dozen aliases. He was an Oxford-trained German agent. He worked hand in glove with Heilser."

"This Heilser—I take it he is top dog..."

"Ah, Konrad. I've met him twice before. Norway first—then France. Brutal—persistent. He'll hunt us down if he has to look behind every tree and rock in Greece."

"Go on..."

"Not much more to it," Soutar said. "When I saw Mosley on the train I knew he was searching you out. Instead of looking for you, I watched Mosley in hopes he'd lead me to you. He did."

Mike grinned. "I've been trying to get away from you..."

"Very good for a newcomer, Morrison, very good. The list—you have it..."

"I memorized it and tore it up."

Mike paused. "The Stergiou list—what does it mean?"

"Well, you might as well know. Foils Stergiou was one of the best-known barristers in Greece, last winter, Stergiou contacted the Italians invaded Greece many officials in the Greek government and posed a proposition to them. They were to turn collaborators if occupation became imminent. Seventeen men agreed to this. They are now working for the Germans as far as the world at large is concerned. All of them are in important positions—there are two or three cabinet ministers among them. Actually, of course, they are working for us. Waiting for us to contact them."

Soutar ground out his cigarette and looked off to the horizon.

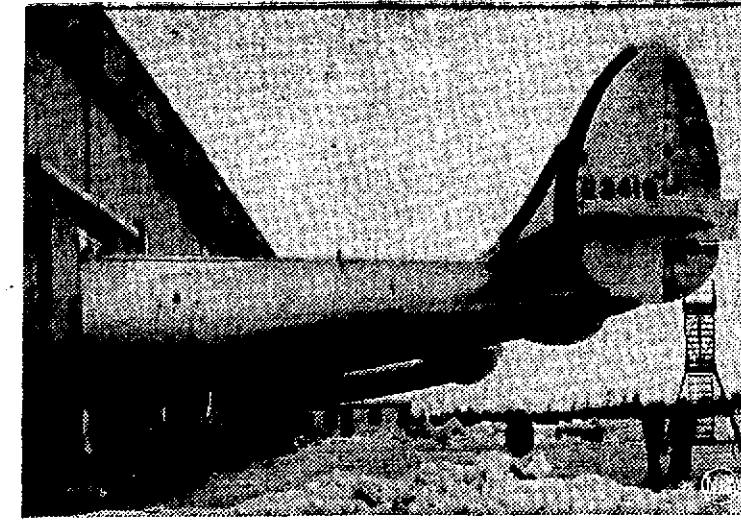

"No man on the Stergiou list knows who the next one is. Each man works separately. In case the Germans find one out, they won't be able to bag the entire lot."

Mike remained quiet for several moments. It seemed such a futile gesture. "These 17 men—what can they hope to do against what we have just seen?"

"Do?" Soutar said. "Many a war has been won or lost in our business. Among them, they'll have to know every move the Germans plan in this theater—they'll know every submarine operating from a Greek port—they'll know every troop and gun they have. This war will take a turn, one day—mark my words. And when it does the Undergrounds in Greece and the occupied countries will handcuff 25 German divisions and keep them from fighting at the fronts."

The port of Antwerp is 50 miles from the sea.

OOPS—Somebody seems to have been in a hurry to close the doors. But actually, that's the way these "nose-dock" hangars at Otis Air Force Base, Massachusetts, work. The planes, giant RC-121's, are driven nose first into the hangars, which cost about $2,169,000, and then large steel doors close around their fuselages. That way, engines are kept warm, and hangar space is cut to a minimum. This cuts hangar construction costs, also.

TV Has Dealt Rough Blow to Dining Room

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—It's possible that television has dealt a paralyzing blow to the dining room. This is far from being a report on a nationwide survey, but look around yourself and draw your own conclusions.

For nearly three centuries the dinner hour of the English-speaking peoples has been growing progressively later. Fashion has moved it from noon forward to 6, 7 and 8 o'clock, despite the efforts of some of the landed gentry of a century and more ago to keep it at the quaint hour of 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Now television sometimes seems bent on moving it forward to 9 and 10 p.m.

This, of course, may be merely an urban phenomenon. But it's certainly not just New York City provincial, for word comes of it happening in such places as Los Angeles and Nashville, Tenn.

Men seem to be getting home from work later. Whatever their individual excuses, there's no denying traffic problems everywhere. When most men come home at evening these days they find their children huddled around the TV set.

In many households the family still eats together regularly. But in others the children have taken to eating while watching TV. Their parents eat together later when the "big programs" come on.

The result is less use of the dining room and more meals eaten off tray tables, before the living room TV set.

Room by room American homes are getting smaller. We've lost the woodshed and the butler's pantry and the music room and parlor and spare bedroom. Must the dining room go too. The answer seems to lie less in architects' blueprints than in 30 million television sets drawing people away from their dining rooms.

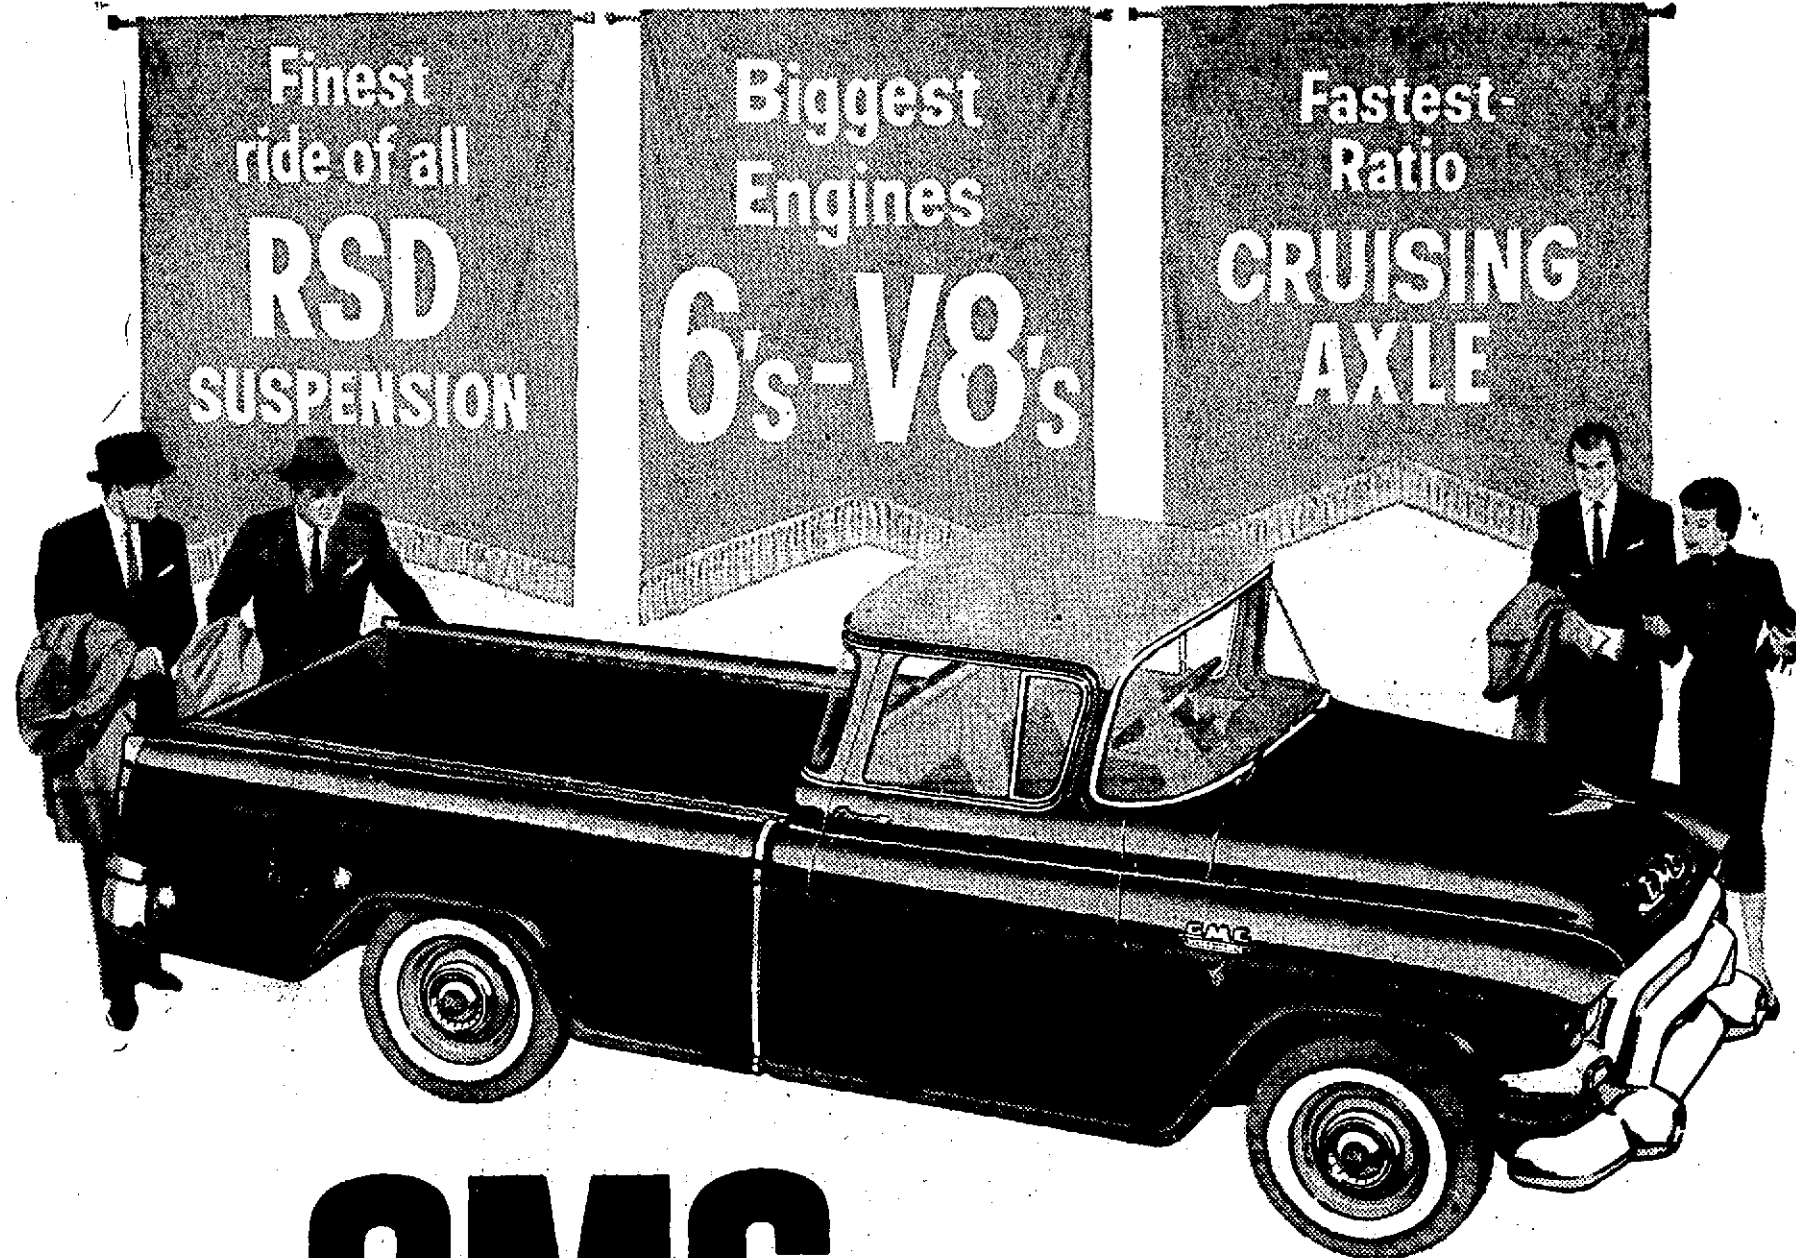

It's a theory of mine that you're inclined to eat more while dining off a tray table watching TV programs than while seated at the dining room table.

The next time you eat while yourself continuing to wield that fork after you're full or reaching for another chocolate in the box—all done unconsciously, all done in nervous reflex physical habit.

It could turn out that none of the social changes television is subtly working is nearly as bad as the fact that prolonged television watching can make you grow fat.

BAD RECORD DARTINGTON, Wis. (UP)—Voters set the wrong kind of record in yesterday's spring judicial primary election.

Out of Lafayette county's 18,000 residents, only 530 went to the polls.

GMC brings you the most impressive improvements of all 1956 trucks

Now we can show you these great new GMC's that are further than ever ahead of all others. Their advances not only clinch power supremacy—but reach into fields still unexplored by other truck-makers.

For example, GMC's Road Shock Damper Suspension*—plus a unique new stabilizer—produces in half-ton models a ride comparable to the finest passenger car.

An optional new fast-ratio cruising axle in light-duty GMC's gives you an overdrive's pace and economy without its cost.

Sharply increased engine displacement in both sixes and V8's gives you a power family unsurpassed in the light-duty field. Specifically, we offer 14.4%

GREATER displacement on 6-cylinder models, 16.2% on V8's than our nearest competitors. And GMC V8's, mind you, match the shortest stroke ratios in the truck industry.

Styling is well into the future—panoramic windshield to sand-tight tail gate. Tubeless tires, of course. And a 12-volt electrical system is standard.

These are some of the strides presented in new 1956 Blue Chip trucks we now have on view. The values are even more notable. Come in and get the facts!
